

Group Matching Target tasked by Daz Smith - GM4DS2

Remote viewed by Anita Ikonen - Method EEC

Target 1313-7679

Today April 27, 2018

Start 6:56 PM

Fourth Stage 2. Target 2. 1313-7679

April 27 2018. 6:56 PM. This is part 2 of notes and drawing, part 1 is hand-written from today.

Something lifts slowly up into the sky, it has air buoyancy so it wants to stay there. It has no trouble staying afloat, it feels weightless. It moves about a bit like gently rocking side to side, meaning that its position is not firmly fixed, it has freedom of movement at least a little bit to sway slowly. It lifts things and people into other places, it is being used as a lift. But it cannot carry anything as a storage, things do not stay inside it.

It rocks gently from side to side, as it moves along a firm straight trajectory slowly toward the right and raising a little bit diagonally in altitude as it goes to the right. It transports people there, and those people want to stay there. It carries things, like a basket.

Sit inside of the carriage: I hear and see people there, it has about three people there. The carrier goes to the right and at the same time it rises steadily a bit at a not steep slope upwards. It goes up a hill, sort of, but in the air. It is like a basket, that carries people, up in the air. People go there.

Go inside of the carrier and be there, what do you see or experience: It feels so very lightweight and not heavy here, as if this whole thing is not being weighed down, as if it is never ever going to fall, as if this carrier wants to stay here. It rocks very slowly and gently from side to side in rather large sweeps meaning not in little nudges, but it is a gentle kind of rocking.

Look at the carrier from up above looking straight down on it: It has a light source, a lamp for the night, that is on top of it as if to show other people far in the distance where this is located. The ceiling has a v-shaped roof and the roof extends with its lower edges a bit outward around the carrier so that it keeps any rain water from dripping close to the walls. It sways so wonderfully from side to side, with long slow sweeps one side then the other and back and forth. I am really high up when I sit here on the floor in the carrier! I am high up in the sky! It has a light source up top over the roof and it lights up when it is night so that this carrier is by no means hidden or concealed in the darkness. In the night this light looks more amber orange red. Sometimes it thunders here in the sky and rains, then it is quite cozy to sit in here.

The carrier hangs suspended by wires, the wires run horizontally (or diagonally with a slow incline upwards in the path of direction to the right) above the carrier. I see two such wires that run parallel to each other, I think that one may be a reserve in case the other one were to be damaged or something. Or actually it is a hoisting device, the two ropes form a loop and it goes around so that the carrier can be slowly pulled one way and then back. It forms a loop but the two ropes look straight and parallel in the air.

This is not a dangerous craft. No matter what you think about it, there is no danger involved, I would feel entirely safe up here. When it gets night in the sky, the surroundings and air is completely black because there are no city lights or lamps outdoors at all, so we are not in a city we are in the wilderness. The light above its roof guides this carrier into its place where it goes. It lands on top of the mountain.

Be inside the carrier and look outside the window and down: The lamp up above on the roof is a small yellow light during the day. It cannot be seen the scenery because it shifts because the carrier moves. Down below the terrain is very steep and cannot be walked on because it is sharp steep mountain rock walls.

There is a soft cushion inside, a sofa, and people can sit here and get comfortable. The carrier has no rocket booster, instead it is carried up slowly. The carrier has got 90 degree angle corners and is not rounded nor a barrel shape. It goes up, it wants to go up a hill, to go there, and to place some things and items up there.

What are the things that are taken up to its destination: Some things are unloaded there, placed onto the floor there, people lifting these things up with both hands on the bottom of those things. The carrier moves very slowly as it goes. It carries boxes.

What is interesting is the light up top above the roof. It is a signaling system, it can blink and tell them when it is going up or coming down. It also seems to work as a lightning rod to prevent a thunder bolt from hitting the carrier itself.

What color is the floor inside the carrier: The floor feels soft, like a rug. And people sit there in the carrier. The lightning bolt pole up top on the roof, and it also works as a signaling system. It blinks, to tell them about where it is going, whether it is headed upwards or down. And the rain falls off the roof without hitting any of the passengers because the roof extends further out than to just the edge of the walls. It is guided away from the lightning bolts, to keep them off from hitting on it. People can drink from glasses in here, small glasses with a yellow liquid, they seem happy and a bit elated to be enjoying a drink here.

What is the target: The target is something high up in the air, a sky taxi.

What is on the target picture on the target page: It is this red-brown colored box carrier. It has a slanted roof.

How do people go inside it: They take a step over a threshold.

How do people feel when they travel in it: They watch out for the lightning bolts that like to strike up top on that pole up above. And they all seem to like the gentle rocking of this carrier as it sways high up in the sky. They sit down in here, and they use this to go places. People don't fall asleep here, it is far too exciting to travel in it. The carrier travels up above over rocks that are below, the terrain down below is otherwise rather inaccessible. It takes people over a tough path that is below, because they anyway want to get up to the top of a mountain.

It is a basket that hangs up in the sky. And it has got a tower or a mast on it that has a blinking red light on a pole.

Go inside of the carrier and describe the experience: There are three people chatting here and enjoying a drink. It is a calm and enjoyable atmosphere among the people. They enjoy the rocking of the carrier. There is a red rug, a red carpeting in here on the floor. No one feels scared of the elevation, they are rather enjoying it. This target is a carrier, a transporter. No one is scared here, and it always takes things and people transported to their destination up top further to the right. The light on the roof blinks at night to let them know that they are coming. The top of the roof has that tower mast. It takes them always safely to their destination, there is no worry here.

Go to the destination on the mountain and await to see as the carrier arrives: The people stepping out of the carrier are a bit tired and exhausted and feeling relieved to be landing safely and getting out of that craft, they feel like "phew" and they feel a bit shaken and messy and tired as if they would want to get to a warm bed or take a bath and go to sleep. The people who are arriving are each carrying briefcases with them.

What is contained in those briefcases: Most of them have got combination locks on them that are part of the briefcases themselves.

And what is inside of those briefcases: There is some grass here, up on top of the hill where they have arrived. The people can lie down on the fresh green grass.

7:57 PM End.

8:59 PM Resume.

Lines, or ropes, high up in the sky. Nobody is afraid here. The carrier does not rotate around, it goes straight. People don't fall asleep here, they stay wide awake.

- 1 something light high up in the clear blue sky
- 3 the yellow light lamp that is up above the carrier
- 1 the landscape down below, the vertigo a bit

- 3 the travel of persons and of parcels and packages
- 7 the brown carrier plus also the brown mountains below
- 6 the parcels being carried here
- 7 the thunder that hits the lightning rod pole
- 9 that nobody falls down from here, and the slight rocking of the carrier

Reading the individual numbers reveals that the parcels seem to be of central importance. People specifically transport the briefcases here. We are very high up.

9:06 PM End.

1313-7679