

Group Matching Target tasked by Daz Smith - GM5DS5

Remote viewed by Anita Ikonen - Method EEC

Target 4463-9999

Today May 2, 2018

Start 2:21 PM

Fifth Stage 2. Target 5. 4463-9999

May 2, 2018. Start 2:21 PM. 4463-9999

There was a very serious quarrel in this place. The overall color is blue. It appears to be dark and cool or cold there. There were quarrels had here. It is a large open wide space and it appears to have black smooth walls around it to define it into a large room but those walls seem to be symbolic or otherwise not real walls.

It was rather serious in this place, a quarrel led to here, a conflict or altercation or you could even call it a fuss.

Start by finding a structure or an element: Flat open area, blue colored, feels cold. Lots of empty space air above it. A large space wide open expanse but the floor here is blue and may be water. I feel that I am in a large box that is the room we are in but this box feels like a fictional boundary, there is also the roof above.

Go to the walls and investigate them: The walls are not real! I knew it! These are not real walls, more like walls that are only defined on paper.

Investigate the blue floor: It feels very cold to the touch. And nobody can stand on it or walk here. This whole room is very weird, something is not right here, meaning that the boundary of the room is not a real boundary, and that what feels like water on the ground is not deep or water.

There is a tall dark structure like a tower in 9999. The blue ground or floor is a very large wide open space with nothing on it. If I touch it to put the palm of my hand flat down on the blue surface then a man comes to tell me that I am not allowed to touch it. I will touch it anyways again. The man gets angry this time and wants to grab me by the neck to throw me away from there for touching the floor. So I will inspect the floor visually from a distance. This room isn't normal, it has been staged somehow, it has been prepared to be this way.

The black structure to the right is interesting. It has some poise and esteem and people hold it in high regard. I put my hand on its surface. It feels warm or even hot to the touch, but a strange type of hot that feels more like a strong electrical burn or perhaps even feels like a chemical burn more so than the heat from temperature.

I run my finger down against the surface of the tower. Ouch, it burns me, because it is electrically active.

I look down at the tower from above. I see people standing around it near, to the left, three to five people, they are discussing something in a heated dispute, they are quarrelling and disagreeing and wanting to shove each other with the hand but not punch each other. We are definitely in a room because there is a roof and it is a cramped space because it is inside of a room. The attention goes to the tower, and why it was being built. Ouch, it feels burning to touch it but not from heat, more like an electrical burn, like an electrical spark!

The tower was being built.

I go inside of the tower. No, it is not nice to be here, it is filled with electronics, wires and black parts, many sharp small components, it is not a space you want to be in, it also feels small inside of the tower.

Look at tower from behind, meaning from the other side than before: There is a bright daylight from the back of it, as if we are outside of the big room that had the black walls and the blue floor. Drawn as the yellow color on the drawing behind the tower. There is no water here on the tower machine.

Sit on the blue floor: I am told by the man to get up and to not sit on it, I am not allowed. He is feeling hectic like he has been quarreling with someone.

Look at the man who keeps asking you to leave the blue floor alone: He wants to have this place for himself, but the big open empty blue floor has to remain empty.

Go directly underneath the top surface of the blue floor: I am not allowed to go there! It is filled with electronics devices underneath and the possibility for electric sparks and voltage down there is massive! It is bright yellow and the sparks would be tremendous! This is a machine or a device by the way and not the case of electrics in a biological tissue I should mention.

Go to the space underneath the floor: It shines bright with yellow, but there are no items there that I recognize, for instance no sofas or chairs or tables. It is not a place for habitation. The floor and this space are not connected. The men are quarreling about something above on the surface, level with the blue floor.

Investigate the blue floor, texture, structure, material, taste, visual: Nobody is allowed to ever step on it. It looks wrinkled and not smooth, covered in bumps or small hills across its surface.

Go to the tower: The other side of the tower, on the right side in the drawing, feels cold to touch. The electric spark heat does not form everywhere when touched. There is no staircase that leads to this place meaning into the blue room.

Go to the roof of the blue room and stand there: I hear the quarrel between the men there and I see and feel the electric sparks of the tower, it seems to be electrically connected to the space underneath the blue floor, the yellow light that I said was daylight is more like the light or glow coming from electrical voltage or of being electrically active.

Look at the target landscape from a small distance to get a good perspective of the whole structure; room and tower: It is not a moving machine, it stays still here so it is not a vehicle for travel or transport. The black thin walls keep people on the outside from seeing into this place. It appears that what is underneath the blue wavy or bumpy floor is being kept hidden, I had that impression of it being kept hidden before also when I first encountered the electric space underneath the blue floor.

The air inside the room smells like a room that is closed in and contains technical devices, like the smell of plastic and computers, the smell of static electricity on such devices in a closed space. I see no windows on the walls but there could still be some but I have seen none.

The men were quarrelling because that one man keeps the other ones out he is the guard. He doesn't want anyone to come into this place! The others seem ignorant, they do not seem to know what is being kept hidden here, so it is not like they were on a mission to go see that hidden artifact that is being kept here, they were more like passing by and surprised that they were not allowed to pass in here, they do not seem to know the reason why they are being told to not come here.

We need to investigate the yellow room under the blue floor to see what is being hidden: It glows very brightly of light yellow! And it is electrically active with sparks! The walls around the room are protecting and hiding this place. The walls are only there to keep prying eyes out.

People wanted to come in here, a crowd gathered outside by the entrance but the guard kept them out. The crowd was ignorant as to why they cannot enter, the crowd is not aggressive or violent or really strongly firm about going inside, more like they are asking "why" can they not be let in here?

The room is large and empty and feels technical and stern. The tower is a guard tower like on a fortress. They can shoot from this tower with the sparks that burn people. They really want to keep people out from coming into this place. The room is guarded even though it has an empty floor space, because what is interesting is kept underneath that strange blue floor. The room is level with the ground, and the room underneath the floor is therefore like on a basement level.

Look further away from the central elements to see the surrounding area outside: Rocks and coastline. I will draw the rocks and waves crashing into the rocks. These rocks are vertical and somewhat oval-shaped brown rocks, not sharp or jagged but more smooth but not perfectly uniform or symmetrical, as drawn. This place is not a secret place because the building itself can be seen it is large and not concealed and is not hidden, but what is kept underneath the floor is the secret that people do not know about and is the reason why people are not allowed to enter into this building but people do not know that that is the reason.

I think we really need to go investigate what is under that floor: It is a very bright room it is illuminated with that soft mellow yellow color. People are sitting there by a table drawing plans and quarrelling a bit, it is the same man who was the guard he can also come to this place. This room is very well lit.

We are in a building which overall is like a fortress, like a castle but a fortress means a castle that is fortified with guards and a watch tower and walls to keep it safe. There is electronics inside.

Electronics are always used because they "do" something, what does this electronics "do": It powers a very large and very impressive machine, but that machine is being kept hidden underneath the floor so that nobody can see it! And it does and shoots electric sparks, because it is electrically loaded!

The electric device presumably has a body or a hull of its own, try to locate: No what I have to find is to see the visual of the yellow room that is under the floor.

There are many small things in this yellow room. The water runs into this place to cover across the blue floor, the blue floor might be water as I first thought. The walls might be the rock cliffs at the water. What does the electronics do, it shoots sparks. It could perhaps be used as a weapon but I don't feel it that way as something meant to be a weapon.

3:13 PM End.

4463-9999

ELEMENTS LISTING

Big room mostly empty with walls that are smooth and black and thin and appear fictional. The room has a ceiling. The walls keep prying eyes from seeing what is inside or rather what is under the blue floor of the room.

Blue floor, cold, possibly water. Not smooth, is covered by small hills or bumps across its surface. No one is allowed to step on it or to touch it.

Quarrel between people. One man is the guard and he keeps the others from coming into this place. The others seem ignorant about why they are not allowed to enter, they do not seem to know what is being kept hidden here and more like they just wanted to pass by. The crowd wanted to get in here and they cannot understand why they are not allowed to enter.

9999 Tower, dark and cylindrical shaped, rooftop upside down cone shaped with the pointy point up. Outer wall hot to touch or actually rather it gives electrical sparks that feel hot if you touch the outer wall. Guard tower like on a fortress. They can shoot from this tower with sparks that burn people.

Daylight behind the tower.

Yellow electric voltage space under the blue floor, has the possibility for tremendous electric sparks and voltage. This is kept hidden and outsiders are not meant to see this.

Something being hidden under the floor of this room.

4463-9999