The main element is a turquoise colored tower or large column in the vertical position. Its top portion is heavy and has a round larger shape, than the length below it which is narrower. There is a pointy roof shape at the top as well. There is at least one trough connected to the tower, and several orange balls or spheres are traveling across the trough like on a conveyor belt. The orange balls are evenly spaced apart, and travel in the direction out from the central tower. At the end of the trough, the orange balls fall down. There is an old man here and he is picking up the orange ball from the ground and putting it back into the trough. The old man is not feeling happy or excited, and also not angry or afraid. He feels a bit tired and worn. He is not working quickly, but also not working too slowly. There is a large drop down on the left side, I cannot locate a floor below. It appears that we are also all of us, the tower as well as the man, up above in the air, because I cannot locate a ground underneath. I have drawn a black shadow underneath the man's feet, because the man is above the ground. It is very windy here, as you can see I have drawn my classical wind element symbols (those gray lines with a curvy end on their left sides).
11:29 AM End RV, because the target image was accidentally exposed because my computer mouse cursor accidentally hovered over the internet browser icon on the bottom of the screen, which produces a small popup of the image.
I write this now, having seen a brief glimpse of the target image, which looked to be a closeup of green plants with several little white flowers; this is all consistent with the report I had already written above, and the drawing I made up until this point:
Water - no
Plants - no
Human/animal - yes, human old man
Vehicle/technology - yes
House/building - no (the tower structure is not the shape of what I mean by a house or building)

Feedback:
Water - no
Plants - yes
Human/animal - no
Vehicle/technology - no
House/building - no
