Feels like nature, green and yellow but orb shaped, above also orb shaped. A blue possibly water flows from narrow stream down into a reservoir of that blue. Found were possibly water and plantlife. Not found were flat surfaces such as floor or wall. May have seen the mouth and teeth of a human once.

I create target PDF, decoy PDF, and do matching with no delay.

Matching: Images are a bridge with large arches and flowing water, and a sleeping male lion. I match my report to the bridge with large arches and flowing water, it matches very well because what I had was flowing water and also the rounded arched shape above the water! You see that I drew another green arch above the water on the drawing. The experience during this remote viewing was that water was flowing guided from narrower places, along paths, into water reservoirs, and always into differently shaped forced shape containers, like guided water in terms of where and into what shape and size compartments to flow to as it goes. I find that the match is very strong.

Outcome: Target is the lion. We either have switching, merging, or a fail session. The lion has yellow and green which could match, and the decoy has the arch and the flowing water.
