We are on the beach sand, the water is nearby with some white sea foam. There is a dark not very tall structure of rock that wraps around. The blue pieces I have drawn were associated as spit but would be splash from the water. On the gray structure there is a railing made out of white posts and bars. Nothing technical, meaning technological, is here. No plantlife was detected.

Feedback: Correlation is there, the black curved shape and the white lines. But no beach sand or water should be inferred.
