This might ruin my experiment set of 10 sessions because I did this session when I am tired. The first element that comes up is the row of trees and the blue possibly water. There is a delicate gray soft organic shaped element which is floating, either floating on water or floating in air, it has several gray bars or lines connecting its top to its bottom, it may have a basket or other compartment as its bottom part. Yellow is on top of this gray object. Some natural rocks on the left side at the feet of the trees.

I now see the target, then create and see a decoy, no self-matching.

Comment after feedback: Pretty good, there are rocks since the floor is stone bricks, the trees with branches I drew, the gray bars or lines that I drew is also consistent with these twigs, the shapes, I think the correlation is there. Even the yellow that is further up can be seen as a yellow leaf.

Possible merging, since the gray elements I drew with the gray bars can be seen on the decoy.
