Internet Search Images A4 Target 3

Today April 8, 2019

Start 6:45 PM

There is noise around me, someone has the tv on and I can hear it, people walking around. I have the music in my headphones same track as before.

Someone is really angry here, something is stuck to the ground and sizzling there. Brown colors with a black stripe horizontally at the upper half. An angry man. Smearred out. Anger, frustration, taking it out on what is flat on the floor. Anger, huge frustration and power. A man feels these feelings.

Red color like shreds in the vertical, small lines shreds above the floor but facing down. Sizzling. There is a cup or bowl shape. Someone got injured here, or that I injured my hand when I tried to touch the target. Something went flat on the floor. The black is bigger than I thought, there is more black downward it is more than just a black stripe. There is spit going diagonally back-left-ward. It is frying here, sizzling.

There is a rounded U-shape curve on the right side, a U tilted at 90 degrees see drawing.

One more time initial elements. A brown rock and it is brown all around, it is angry and feels angry. It is sizzling on the rock. It hurts my hand badly if I touch it it would cut my hand off quickly, almost too quickly. The motion and emphasis is downward to go flat against the floor.

Secondary stage

What is flat against the floor, probe there: I am really angry when I have pushed something there or when I am seeing it there, there is a formidable force that goes into it. Something rolls around itself without moving away from its spot where it is and as it rolls around in different directions, it sparkles. Heat at the floor and a squashing down sensation. There is something there that is hard to get to, I have to try again. Metal, silver flakes. It smells like... fresh smell like the smell of fresh air. It went down and it was pushed down hard to go flat against the ground. There is red color here above the floor. Something is sizzling and frying.

There is metal flat against the floor, it shines like silver colored. I put my hand to touch it and my arm gets scraped against by something that moved near my arm. Someone moves and shakes the floor. This is a very dynamic target, things are not going away from here but are moving around at this place. Red flakes, like the thin paper-like pieces that float in the air above a bonfire from burnt wood or bark are floating in the air, these are the red flakes. There is spit, many tiny pieces of spit which are flung away outward from the central site on the floor. A red glow in the sky.

7:05 PM End RV. I don't know if it resembles more the meteorite or the spaghetti, the meteorite the most, but let's just see if my report correlates to the target image, the target image could also be something other than the four search words.

I accidentally caught a tiny glimpse of other search images and noticed that they seemed to be all of umbrellas against a white background, one of the umbrellas was a light lilac color, but it was not a long look or a close look, the look I got did not seem to be reflected as impressions in my report so contamination and dislocation is not suspected from that tiny glimpse but I make a note of it anyway of course.

The target is an umbrella. Cup or bowl shape, the black flat and black line are good descriptors, although I was not getting the detailed shape. What I left out of the text report because I thought it would be silly (logic thought of course) to describe what looks like both a meatball and a meteorite, namely a black irregularly shaped object roughly in the shape of an uneven ball, I should have put that in, we remind ourselves that all impressions need to always be included.

There is no angry man and nothing is seen that is brown in color. There is nothing red seen on the target image. Nothing is sizzling. However, the many tiny pieces of spit that are flung away and outward this is perfect. With all things considered, I give this session a grade B. I cannot give it an A because I have included impressions which cannot be related to this target image. It is often problematic with a target image that has been set against a whitened background, I generally do not allow those, and also a question I have now is what if the background and surroundings which were digitally removed, would it also reflect on the target impressions or not? A good session it was great anyway.
