Internet Search Images Target 4

giraffe applepie shoes thunder running

I smell something very strong, it smells like rubber and makes me crinkle my nose. The smell is pungent and off-putting and unpleasant, like industrial rubber. The color is brown. The rubber is semi-see through, the rubber goes around in an asymmetrical shape like a band, like it could be the shape of... shoes! I forgot that one of my search words was shoes, I just remembered the giraffe and applepie and running but - shoes!

The element is close to the ground, or I mean it is on the ground, against the ground. It smells like industrial rubber very strongly. The colors are brown and orange and yellow, the background I can see it but it is fuzzy like made out of splotches of colored lights, like very large color splotches pixels. The smell is unpleasant, and there is something offputting and unpleasant here, nothing here that makes me laugh and nothing funny.

Collect more IEs if can: I can grab something into my hands, it is that rubber band that I can pick up into my hands. Pick it up into hands: It is slobbery and floppy and changes shape when handled, malleable in shape of its outline and not fixed.

THE SMELL OF RUBBER!!!

Go to secondary stage, probe the element: This rubber, when someone grinds it hard against the floor then this rubber material gets very hot and generates and absorbs heat, it starts to glow of heat.

I do not feel welcome here, the target is not welcoming for me to be here, it is cocky and self-righteous and arrogant, someone masculine who wouldn't care about me being there.

What more can we do with an internet image target... how far can we probe it? Or is there a hurry to catch the right image in the search before the settings change...?

It won't rise up, it stays right here flat against the ground, this wide rubber band with an irregular outline not a symmetrical shape outline.

I run my fingertip along the outline of the rubber band and I feel heat is generated in the rubber easily when I do. The heat is generated by friction, when the rubber is being grinded against the ground. Something tastes bad here I see a tongue in an open mouth, it is that taste of rubber.

This target is arrogant and impudent and also a bit rude, that I should not be here.

Ok focus here, we need to figure out what this is. So far we have a description, but can we get closer to figuring out exactly what it is?

The heat burns against my forearm. The smell of rubber is really strong. Someone steps down on it, presses down hard with their foot on the rubber band (consistent with shoes again, but no premature labeling is allowed).

Calm down and take a moment to feel yourself at the element, let it speak and tell its story. Something very hard and firm and strong presses down hard into the rubber band on the ground. A formidable force. Aha! AHA! This target must be "running"! I didn't realize at the time of choosing the five words that "shoes" and "running" are that similar!

The grinding of a foot against the rubber forms heat. The heat burns my hand when I touch it. The smell of rubber is intense. There is a tongue, so there is a human or a mammal animal here.

OUCH! My arms burn if I go near to the target site! The colors are brown and orange in patches. The heat burns here around that rubber ring. The rubber ring is pressed down on by someone and someone grinds it against the ground so that it forms heat.

Probe the rubber ring element: On the inside of the ring there is heat. And there is a tongue here near to it from an open mouth. We are close to the ground, on the ground, and there is the smell of rubber.

Unfortunately shoes and running are too similar. I would guess that this target will be a closeup of a shoe with a rubber border around the bottom and probably also a rubber sole of the shoe.

10:53 PM. The first image that shows up is unfortunately against a white background, I tend to do poorly on those they are one of the type of images that I do not allow for targets made for me. The image is of two plush toys and under them an image of a stripey purse. The image is computer edited and with a white background and I do not do well on those targets, I need a real photo with a real background and no computer editing.

The other three images on the same row - now I look at them - are closeups of shoes that have rubber soles.

I am not sure if I want to grade this session, since I do not allow pictures with a white background or computer edited. I will take a print screen of the four images also.
