I have the same music playing in headphones as for the past two sessions. I like it.

It feels bad, it feels like two wooden boards from that a wooden board would have been broken in half into a V-shape in the middle, it is massive and smells old and I feel sickly from it and like an old man, there is somewhat of a downward direction on the center of it. It smells like black pepper, a musky kind of smell like an old man's house or old things or a man.

The man leans his arm on the table to do arm wrestling. He is old and heavy and weighed down at the line where the table was broken into half. Heavy heavy weighed down.

Going into secondary stage to probe these elements and look around.

A curved red-brown wooden object. Inside the wooden object I see a landscape that is blue sky and green grass. The old man is holding on to the wooden object that is heavy, the man is not able to lift it up off the floor. We can go inside the wooden object. The main emphasis of the elements is on the floor level, but of objects not flat against the floor but on the floor and not very tall up. It has to do with the old man's memories.

The brown wooden object is a display case. It shows something to the outside world. This display case can be turned around on the floor, it makes a sound when it is turned around, it is difficult to turn around and it does not turn easily. Floor feels like gravel, light gray almost white color, sharp gravel sized rocks. We can go inside the brown wooden box, but we bend our back first to go in, it is not tall enough for us to walk in standing tall.

Let's go inside it. Phew, a pungent smell comes out and meets me, it is stuffy old air inside that brown case. The brown case can be pushed along the floor, it has got four small dark gray or black wheels on it that it can roll on, the wheels themselves can turn around their vertical axes to rotate around. There are strawberries here.

There are two halves to the main element, and the two halves are folded and can be folded open or closed, there is a line that goes down the middle which is the point at which they fold and open. This wooden block is heavy. I am trying to push it, someone is pushing on it. It is a glass case it has got two glass case doors on the front that can be opened outward from the middle. Stuffy smell and dusty at the object especially on its lower front side. The man doesn't let me touch the top of the brown wooden object he pushes me away but not violently but he is also not happy, it is the mood that he has, dull and old and not really bothered but still rather attentive to this object.

Some black smoke is coming from its underside.

1:11 AM End RV. It is late and I am tired, I end the session here. This target has given a very distinct character which is not commonplace, and is as described.

The image that shows up has two photos on it, one of two women and one of a primate. I recognize the color of the woman's shirt who has the brown shirt on the right, and possibly something about one or both of the women reminds me of the man I was sensing.

This session would be really hard to judge, I think this is not an ideal target image for RV. I have no idea. This target gave me a lot of strange sensations. It is what it is.

Well, the two women are like the two halves with the cut in between, and I drew an arm in the middle so that is somewhat consistent with the photo. I get really weird "old man" vibes from the target image of the women also. The color of my drawing background is exact identical to the color of the right side woman's shirt. I might give this session a C for some correlation of initial elements. The sky and grass might have something to do with the monkey picture. There are two pictures on this target image. I feel really weird from this photo, it feels haunted and bad and I don't like it, but, it is what it is.
