Internet Search Images B6 Target 10

Today April 15, 2019

Start 3:55 PM

Six search words from random word generator, the words are known to me from start of session.

Buffalo Leggings Gauva Peacock Iron Box Bones

Yellow element thick vertical in the upper two-thirds of the image, center in terms of left and right. It pushes itself up there with some elegant force to be up there. There is also a white sphere above the yellow, the sphere is like an object or thing but it has no real walls but it is more solid than being just a color.

3:59 PM Secondary stage

It is forceful and powerful the yellow element to be there. I probe the yellow element and see the white sphere above it again. When I touch the white soft element it feels like when a face is being sprayed by a jet of water like going down a water slide but I do not detect the water just the sensation. The white element is soft, the walls of it are sheer and delicate and buckle easily, but its insides is thicker denser and stronger than the sheer outer membrane shell. It feels heavy in my hand like filled with water, water is heavy like that for its size.

Such a strange element. It has that soft skin on it but a thick dense interior of the same weight as water would be but is not filled with a liquid. The skin of it is crinkled and not flat on the sphere surface, the sphere has retained its shape but the skin has not fitted evenly across the interior sphere. I can't wait to see what it is. It sits on the yellow pole, the pole upper end is not flat or even but bulges up asymmetrically. The white element feels heavy like a human head, heavy for its size but still soft inside but also hard inside, soft but dense with mass. The inside of the sphere is juicy like if it were water pressed tightly into a ball but is not liquid inside. It is the strangest yet most delightful thing to remote view probe!

4:07 PM End RV because the amount of probing has to end here for this protocol.

4:10 PM Pause.

4:27 PM Resume.

The yellow element is similar to the two yellow vertical bands on the target image. There are two white heads on the picture on the rolled up fitness mat, I discussed the white being "like a head". The softness but density of the fitness mat is similar to what I was feeling and I think would be a good match. I mean I had something that was soft but dense, as described. The fitness mat fits better than other spheres I can think of. The skin cover of the white sphere I do not understand from the target image. Remember that the horizontal line I drew on the report drawing is not a line element but simply a marker to show that our elements were elevated above the floor, and a correlation of the line cannot be implied for instance to the white line on the rolled up mat.

The correlation is good, grade is A.
