Target WR18

Today April 22, 2019

Start 2:51 PM

Green canopy of top of trees foliage up at some elevation. Air is light yellow with white speckles across it.

There is an open vase on the floor, large to be a vase, and it gets wider toward the top. It feels like butterflies in the air. The ground is firm.

3:01 PM Secondary stage.

Probe canopy: Yellow up above them as the background, a large color more so than a defined shape element. Probe yellow: There is a mild fragrant smell from it. The yellow element is large and not a solid defined shape, more spread out and undefined in shape and boundary. Probe vase: It grows here, it is more like an old tree trunk. We rise up as the little butterflies that are there. Probe butterflies: They rise up with the air. There are many little white speckle dots on them, otherwise they are light yellow color.

Probe butterflies and white speckles: I need to go up to the green canopy. Probe green canopy: The ground below is firm.

I don't find any interesting element leads here to probe, not just because of these elements but the emphasis map is also "flat and boring" for this target.

3:10 PM End RV.

I think it is ok to give this session an A for correlation because I talked about butterflies.

(Comment: a recent previous session done earlier today found a hairy animal with short hair fibers and eyes and a gray clam and purple, many details of this target image reminded me instantly a lot of that image. Dislocation/switching, but why? Just a note but I do not factor that similarity into the grade of that session or the grade of this session, I just wanted to make a comment on that. The short hair fibers are there and the butt of the insect looks exactly like the clam I had in that session.)

This target is similar enough to a butterfly that I am going to give this a grade A.

3:15 PM End session.
